Discussion

Section 401 of the City Charter specifies that the City Council will provide for departments or offices for the effective and efficient operation of City government; and

The City provides numerous vital services to promote the safety, health, and wellbeing of its residents and visitors; and

In addition to policing, prosecution, and rehabilitation, the City seeks to promote and prioritize crime intervention, prevention and correction methods to best serve residents, which includes mitigating known risk factors; and

Kansas City's public safety efforts have historically operated across multiple departments without unified structure, limiting coordination, accountability, and consistent implementation of community safety; and

Establishing the Department of Justice and Community Intervention institutionalizes this collaborative work and will serve as a central hub connecting public safety agencies, corrections, community organizations, and residents to ensure unified and collaborative safety efforts.

The establishment of the Department of Justice and Community Intervention is designed to address matters of custody, prevention and non-criminal safety and will not be tasked with any criminal investigations or enforcement under the purview of the police department; and

Centralized data management, tracking, and evaluation of public safety interventions enables data-driven decision-making and measurable accountability across the public safety ecosystem; and

The City is building a new detention facility, requiring oversight and strategy for custody operations; and

Positioning corrections operations within a broader framework that includes reentry services, violence prevention, and other services support pathways for intervention, accountability, and sustained positive outcomes; and

A comprehensive approach to community safety reduces duplication of services, improves resource efficiency, and enhances the effectiveness of public safety interventions citywide;
