Commissioner Price

We know that evidence-based violence prevention programs improve business success in cities. Let us show you what those evidence based methods are. While we're at it, we know that in the current environment, it is not if but when you may be affected or near someone affected by violence. When that happens, time matters! Civilians are on the scene faster than first responders in many circumstances. Basic knowledge of bleeding control can save lives and this course will teach you those skills. You can find more at
