Discussion

Over the past several years, the trends of restaurant/food operations have transitioned to more non-traditional operations. Through these changes, a gap was identified that didn't allow for these types of operations fell in between the 13 different types of permits the Department offered.

By creating this new Non-Mobile Food Vendor Permit, it is a way to generate opportunities to these small businesses as way for them to expand their current businesses and thrive in Kanas City.

Is it good for the children?

Working to assure health and safety standards are adhered to in all pop-up style establishments throughout the city, benefits all within the community, especially the children.

How will this contribute to a sustainable Kansas City?

The creation of the new permit will provide more opportunities for an increase in exposure to small business throughout the City. This would increase the likelihood of these business transitioning into brick and mortar establishments, thus increasing the overall success of the City.
